

If using the below images, please credit Marcin Wichary.

Charles Babbage's Difference Engine No. 2, on display at the Computer History Museum, was designed in the late 1840s, weighs 5 tons, is 11 feet long and seven feet high, and has 8000 parts.

The printing apparatus automatically typesets, prints and stereotypes results.